Do you Need Buildings?

If you do and put off building because lumber is high, are you not making a mistake?

There is not any prospect at present of lumber prices going down much for a number of years, and the comfort you and your family will get out of a good house will more than repay any extra cost. If it is a barn or machine shed you need your live stock and the life of your machinery will more than repay any extra cost.

Our prices, however, are not high, our price list mailed to you on request, will prove that the quality is of the best and is thoroughly air dried.

Governments and Commissions

Canada has become a land of Commissions. There is the Railway Commission, the Civil Service Commission, the Deep Waterways Commission, Harbor Commissions, the Soldier Settlement Board, the Pensions Board, while Commissions almost without number have been appointed in recent years to inquire into this, that and the other question. In addition to the many Commissions appointed by the Dominion authorities, every Province has a number of these bodies created under Provincial statutes.

Other Commissions and Boards have been created to discharge administrative functions, oft-times of a semi-judicial character, when Governments have been faced with problems where, for political reasons, they did not care to assume direct responsibility in administration because of the pressure they knew would be applied to prevent a strict enforcement of the law, or because of the unpopularity which must inevitably ensue from a proper adherence to the regulations laid down and through the application of strict business principles.

While not condemning Commissions as an institution in government, it is open to question whether all Governments in Canada, both Federal and Provincial, have not made mistakes in a too-frequent resort to them and thereby created a feeling of want of confidence among the masses of the people.

Be that as it may be, one thing is at least clear. If a Government transfers to a Commission important administrative duties and responsibilities which ordinarily belong to Government itself, then it is the bounden duty of that Government to support and uphold the actions of such Commission, except where it is shown that the Commission has been derelict in its duty, has exceeded its powers, or has shown marked partiality in administration.

Last summer, one by one the members of the Board of Commerce resigned from office because of disagreement with members of the Dominion cabinet, until, at last, there was no Board left in existence. Readers will recall the sensation caused by the resignation of Mr. Murdoch and the charges of interference with the Board which he made publicly in the press. The Government thereupon appointed new members to the Board. These men recently issued a most outrageous order prohibiting the importation of sugar into Canada, ordering that all Canadian purchases of sugar must be made from Canadian refiners, and fixing the retail price of sugar at 21 cents a pound, plus freight, although there were large surplus stocks in the country and sugar was retailing as low as 10, 11 and 12 cents a pound in the United States. An outraged public forced the suspension of this order by the Government pending an investigation, but it was so palpably framed in the interests of the refiners solely and against all other classes of industry using sugar and the people of Canada generally, that it should be absolutely cancelled.

The fact that in the creation of these Commissions, Governments always reserve to themselves the right of over-riding the acts and decisions of the Commissions—undoubtedly a necessary precaution under democratic institutions—only goes to show that in the final analysis Governments are responsible for the acts of such Commissions.

The sooner Canada gets back to the straightforward plan of clearly defined Government responsibility in all acts of public administration, with Parliament as a free and untrammelled forum for the discussion of all public questions and grievances, and the final arbiter in all matters, the better for the Dominion.

Plenty of Butter in West.

The butter production of Alberta will be in excess of 12,000,000 pounds this year, according to the province's leading creamery authority. He states that it will far exceed the notable record of 1919.

Manitoba Butter.

Enough butter to cover 265,000,000 slices of bread was produced in Manitoba this year, according to L. A. Gibson, provincial dairy commissioner. Of 8,250,000 pounds produced, 4,100,000 have been exported, he stated.

Will Give Demonstration

Arrange to Test Alberta Coal in Winnipeg Furnaces.

The Alberta mines branch has arranged to open a demonstration plant in Winnipeg for the purpose of trying out different grades of Alberta coal and showing the Manitobans how to use them. For the next four months experimental fires will be kept going in a number of different types of furnaces besides cook stoves and heaters. Marcus C. Syme, resident combustion engineer, will be in charge.

The coal will be secured from the regular stocks of the Winnipeg dealers, and no attempt will be made to pick samples. As a result of recent tests in one of the government boilers in Winnipeg an order has been given for 2,500 tons of Alberta coal.

before purchasing a baking powder that may possibly contain injurious ingredients. Many food scientists claim that baking powder containing alum is unsafe for use in food. The mere fact that some brands of baking powder have the words "No Alum" on the label is not sufficient proof that they are what they are represented to be. THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic, and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Wild Duck From New York Is Found In Alberta.

From New York state wild ducks drift northwestward to Alberta according to the inscription found on a band on the leg of a pintail shot on the outskirts of Camrose recently. The inscription bore the wording, "Released by the American Museum at New York. WM the leader of No. 35793 please notify us." Carl Jensen, who shot the bird, is communicating with the museum authorities and is having it mounted. Roughly speaking, it would be about 2,500 miles from New York to Camrose.

Soldiers Irrigating Land.

The Provincial Irrigation project at the Returned Soldiers' Settlement, South of Penticton, B.C., is advancing satisfactorily. About 450 men are employed on the work; most of whom are returned soldiers. By spring it is expected that the work will be completed, making it possible to bring 4,000 acres of good land under cultivation.

They are of purely vegetable origin and, while cleansing the bowels, at the same time tone up the entire digestive system.

Notes from a Heathen

The recent vote shows that the majority of the people in the province have decided that the minority shall no longer be able to take what is not good for them.

We understand that a strong local committee is being formed having as its object the total prohibition of smoking in all its pernicious and disgusting forms.

It only remains now for us to adopt an old Eastern custom, and then indeed all will be well.

We are rapidly approaching the millennium.

Everyone is wondering who were the two goats in Elba.

Social at Elba

A Basket Social will be held at the Elba Schoolhouse, on Friday November 5th, beginning at 8 p.m. An entertaining evening will be spent. Miss Ruddy is training the children in a humorous dialogue entitled "Bridget's Party." Vocal solos will be given by Mrs. Bolick and Mr. Schofield, and a duet by Messrs. Waldo and Swenerton. Readings are expected from Mrs. Will and Mr. Nicholson. A set of 75 Magic Lantern Slides will be shown by Rev. R. K. Swenerton. Refreshments will be provided in the baskets which will auctioned off. The ladies of Elba will also provide hot tea or coffee.

Keen Bidding for Alberta Bonds

Tenders were opened at noon Monday, November 1st at the office of the Provincial Treasurer for One Million Dollar issue of six per cent ten year Telephone Bonds which were advertised for on October 20th last.

Eighteen bids, some representing as many as four different bond houses were received in all, evidencing the keen interest taken in the high class bonds of this Province. The highest tender was filed by Harris Forbes and Company and the National City Company, their bid being 100.528 and accrued interest. The bonds were consequently awarded to that firm. Since the bonds brought a premium the six per cent rate is therefore reduced to a basis of 5.92.

The next highest tender was that of Wood Gundy and Company, Toronto, who bid 99.97. Five of the bids exceeded 99, and nine were above 98.

Most of the financial houses had representatives on the ground and Hon. C. B. Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer, was the recipient of many congratulations from those present, not only on the splendid price received, but on the careful and efficient manner in which preparations had been made for the sale and prompt delivery of the bonds.

This is the highest price received by the Province since the year 1915, being some four points higher than the sale of the $2,000,000 issue of identical bonds made last August.

The general opinion expressed by the bond men present was that this is the best sale made in years by any of the Provinces in Canada.

The Provincial Treasurer announces that this sale will not interfere with the 5 per cent 10 year Domestic Bond issue or the sale of Alberta 5 per cent Demand Saving Certificates, which will continue to be sold as formerly at par.

An argument as to the origin of bagpipes had waxed loud and long between a Scotsman and an Irishman, each of whom claimed that his own country had produced the instrument.

Finally, the Irishman clinched matters by remarking:

"Well, the truth is, the Irish invented the pipes and made a present of them to the Scots. And the Scots haven't seen the joke yet!"

Men, Men! Try It To-night— Feel Free Tomorrow

Simple Way to Get "Pep," To Be Put Right On Your Feet.

When a man has lost ambition to "dig in" and stay at things—when he complains of headache, fullness in the right side, pains in the shoulder blade—it's purely a case of "Livers."

These symptoms invariably indicate a clogged, inactive liver. The body can't get rid of its wastes, and the whole system is half paralyzed.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills stimulate the liver into activity in one night. Bring a mild vegetable laxative they produce results in a few hours. The bilious headache and constipation are cured, spirits rise, complexion clears, animation returns. Nothing is the calendar so efficient for that tired, lary feeling as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Very mild, don't interfere with work, invariably do lots of good. Try a 25c box, all dealers.

He picked up the cat and smoothed her crumpled fur with his big hand.

"That was night on to forty year ago," he said, "and I've been wandering about the bush ever since. Except a few years I was down in the Southern States, ranchin' in 'em. I picked up a lot down there, but didn't work keepin', I guess. What I was goin' to say was, I never see a mother and her boy together without a big something I can't name standin' right out before me, and that something is what I've missed by not havin' a mother."

Widow Ross laid her pipe on the table.

"Tommy," she commanded, "you go right down to the spring and bring up that bucket of milk, and don't you spill it, or I'll pull every one of them red hairs out of your head. I don't suppose you've lost your appetite none lately, Bill?"

"Periodically, only, marm. I ain't got over my kickin' for brick-cooked bread and milk, particularly the bread of a lady I know to be the best cook on Totherside."

Mrs. Ross showed two rows of white teeth in a pleased smile. Then her face grew stern again.

"Totherside," she barked, "why, I don't take that as a compliment, Bill Paisley. Ain't I the only woman on Totherside?"

"Beginnin' your pardon, I mean on the whole countryside—Broughton included," retrieved Bill gallantly.

"What be you all goin' to do about Hallbut?" asked the woman, sitting down at the spinning-wheel.

Bill shook his long hair and chuckled.

"I got scolded once for sayin' what I thought about sellin' our timber, so don't ask me."

"The widow's heavy brow met in a frown."

"Here you are forty years old, and that's old enough for you to have some sense if you're goin' to have any. And I must say I don't think you nor Big McTavish nor any of you Bushwackers have an ounce of sense among you. Here you are fightin' for a fortune, or at least keepin money, which you might have out of your pockets. Hosh! I believe that Boy McTavish has got you all under a spell."

"Boy is sure the strongest and bitterest fighter amongst us," agreed Bill, "but we're all of one opinion. We like the woods, and I guess we have reason to. It has give us all a mighty good livin', and somehow wood-livin' has somethin' about it that cleared land ain't got—sunlight and sounds and silence and I'll be—"

"Be careful now, you're talkin' the widow on the table," then go to the outhouse and bring in the bread, the brick-baked loaf."

"Mrs. Ross," said Paisley, "you're not only a good-looking woman, but you're a good-hearted woman. Once I hoped I might be your son-in-law and have all the brick-baked bread I wanted, and the corncake which only you can bake, but Mary Ann she seems to think different, and I'm thinkin', after all, she had some reason, seen 'a is only somethin' about twenty-two years old and me nearly twice that."

The widow put her finger on her hip and glanced fearfully toward the door. Then she looked with commiseration at Paisley, and approaching him in a crouching attitude, whispered:

"Mary Ann is goin' to marry the teacher."

Bill's stool, poised on two legs, came to the floor with a thump.

"Marry the teacher?" he repeated; "marry the teacher? I didn't think he'd be turkey-trapped. I didn't think he was brave enough to ask her."

"I ain't agin' it," said the widow, "but I'm I?" cried the widow. "But I've got two eyes to see with, haven't I, Bill Paisley?"

"Aye, marm, to do whatever you like with," answered Bill pleasantly, laid down his eyes on the loaf of bread, which Tom had just brought in. Then noting the widow's nudged dignity, he smoothed it with his big hand.

"I ain't agin' it," said the widow, "but I'm I?" cried the widow. "But I've got two eyes to see with, haven't I, Bill Paisley?"

Paisley laughed queerly.

"Well, Tommy, and what if I don't?"

"Well, I overheard him and that Watson man plannin' some things together the other day, I thought I wouldn't tell anybody, but I can't keep it any longer."

He stood on tip-toe and whispered something in the man's ear. Paisley gripped the lad's arm.

"You're dreamin'," he cried.

"No, Bill, I heard 'em make it up between 'em," gasped Tom. "An' what I want to know is, what's going to be done about it?"

"I don't know," answered Paisley dazedly. "I don't know—I'll have to study this thing out."

His square jaw was set and he toyed with the lock of his rifle.

"You haven't told anyone else, Tommy," he asked.

"Nary a soul."

"Then don't. I'll see you in a night or two. Keep your eyes on the teacher. Remember, if Big McTavish or Boy hear what you've told me they'll kill him sure. You know what that will mean."

Too Much Appetite may be as dangerous as too little

When the skin is sallow or yellow, the eyes dull, the head aches or sleep broken and unrefreshing, the back aches, or there is a pain under the right shoulder blade—it is an indication that the body is being poisoned by poorly digested and imperfectly eliminated food-waste. CHAPTER XV. War Tactics.

Paisley paddled slowly across the creek, drew his skill into the willow brush, and picking up his rifle, waited at the edge of the creek until he reached the bay. It slept grayly of cold beneath the moon, and all about its tranquil waters a ragged tree-frame stood spiral-like and shadowy—disheveled cloud in an open blotch of sky. Paisley gazed across the bay, his face fixed and his whole attitude one of protest.

Does the Untutored Redman See Beyond the Veil?

A Remarkable Prophecy By Ki-Nis-Tin a Powerful Indian Chief, and Its Sequel.
By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

In the Prince Albert Herald of April 19th, there is an interesting paragraph as to a Lac la Ronge Indian who foretold his death to the day, a week in advance, though apparently quite well at the time of his prediction. This reminds me of a similar incident right here in the old days which may interest some of our readers.

Ki-nis-tin was by far and away the leading Indian in this locality when I settled here in 1884 and a man of very strong character. He had a following of some fourteen braves amongst whom, his eight sons were notable as fine big men, skilled hunters and splendid shots, and they were all armed at that time with repeating Winchester's. Ki-nis-tin purchased all supplies, sold all furs trapped by his hand and personally transacted all their business; his trade alone had practically enriched Xavier Patoche, who was their favorite trader. At that time he was not on friendly terms with the Hudson's Bay Company, towards whom he held a grudge, as parties who had told the Indians blithely.

On several occasions he gave me warning that I was encroaching on his hunting grounds by settling down on his old farm and warned me to leave before war would happen. I made several attempts to get on good terms with him but it was not until the year 1887 that I was successful, and we finally became great friends; the first white man, he informed me, that had been honored by his friendship.

Neither he or his small band had accepted the treaty with the Government. In fact, being wealthy in horses, furs and supplies of all kinds, he looked on the $500 per annum (which each treaty Indian received from the Government) with contempt.

Ki-nis-tin had many chats with me, by the camp fire, over the future of his band and what would become of them after his death. After having had pleasant and profitable trading relations with him for some years, one of the sons (Tas-ko-tup-e-tung) came in from their wintering camp, at that time some twenty-five miles to the northwest, with an urgent message to me to come out at once. The month was February, weather cold and lots of snow. Packing up a small trading outfit I started back with the young Indian next morning, reaching their main camp about noon on the third day out. As usual I was a guest of Ki-nis-tin and after the customary trading had taken place he split all his people out of the tepee and turning to me, said "You wondered why I sent for you." "Yes," was my reply, "I thought perhaps you were sick, so brought along my medicine chest."

He laughed, said he never felt better but his time was growing short. "In what way?" I asked. "Well," he replied, "when the buds come on the poplar trees, just before they break into leaf, I will go to join my Father."

Still, I did not quite understand him, so asked him again to explain his meaning, and then he told me clearly and simply that he had received warning from the spirit world and that his death would take place at the time stated, "early spring." I felt distressed as it was really fond of the old man; not that he was so very old, between sixty and sixty-five I would say, and apparently in perfect health. I endeavored to shake his belief and told him he never looked better but he simply refused to discuss the matter.

He then went on to say that I was the first white man he had ever made a friend of, that he trusted me fully and laid a grave charge to leave me "Look at my children and followers, what will become of them when the head dies." Unthinking deeply over the matter I have decided it is useless to "kick against the pricks," the day of the Red Indian is gone; it will be better for them to follow the example of other bands, take the small government pittance and become reserve Indians; but for myself, Ki-nis-tin will never take their treaty money.

Here the old man stood up in the tepee, dropped his robe and stood up-right before me; only a breech-clout covering his nakedness. A fine specimen of a savage, truly; six feet in height and handsome aquiline features; a number of scars on his broad breast made by arrows and bullet wounds in old-time fights with Blackfeet on the plains.

Pagans? we call them, but the secrets of the other world that noted scientists like Sir Oliver Lodge and Canon Doyle are now trying to explain to humanity, were no secrets to Ki-nis-tin as he was constantly in touch with the world of spirits and felt no fear; rather, in fact, rejoiced that he would soon join their numbers.

Now, he went on to say, "I want you after I am gone to get the land where our graves are, and where I will be buried, for a Reservation." My reply was, that a promise of this kind was not in my power, but I could, and would, try my best to get this land reserved for them. "Very well," he said, "keep your word in this and long shall be your life and prosperous your days in the future. Break your word to me and evil spirits shall haunt your existence and make your life miserable." He then went on at length on other points regarding his people, finally, calling his family, we all retired for the night.

The weeks went by and just at the time indicated, before the poplars burst into leaf, my children came running into the house calling, "Daddy, there are two big Indians outside and they look very miserable." On going out a glance told me that Ki-nis-tin's prophecy had come true for these were two of his sons; their hair dishevelled and blackened faces told the story, and sitting down quietly beside them, they gradually related the facts of their father's death and how peacefully he had passed away—literally slept with his fathers—in full confidence of a happy hereafter (and who can gainsay it).

Thus was the old man's prophecy literally fulfilled, and I thought to myself, many things are revealed unto the simple and concealed from the wise.

Ki-nis-tin's legacy proved a heavy one, as if took some years heavy correspondence with Ottawa; this was made more complicated by lumbermen, keen after some spruce timber on the proposed reserve. Finally, thanks largely to Hon. David Laird, who was Indian Commissioner at the time (who like King Arthur's men was a very perfect knight), no personal wires to pull, like, alas, many of our modern politicians) the reservation became a fact, but the name of Ki-nis-tin, which I wished commemorated, had an O added to it by some red tape clerk, Kinsiston Reserve came into being and my old friend Ki-nis-tin's bones rest in peace.

Some years ago it was again my privilege to assist one of the old man's sons, "Ne-pa-na, qua-nin," known to many old timers as Nipi. He was rapidly going blind and evidently needed expert treatment. After a spirited fight with the authorities I received permission to take him to Winnipeg where the services of a good oculist partially saved his sight.

Formation of Canadian Council of Child Welfare

New Organization Will Arrange Program for Work Throughout the Dominion.

Ottawa.—The outcome of the Dominion Child Welfare conference held here was the formation of the Canadian Council of Child Welfare. The objects of the new organization as set forth by Dr. Young, of British Columbia, are to co-operate with the Child Welfare division of the Department of Health; to prepare and disseminate information on child welfare work and to recommend a program for the work throughout the Dominion.

Nationally organized bodies interested in child welfare work are to be represented on the council. The recommendation provided for two representatives from each of these bodies, but several delegates from western provinces and from Quebec thought this would mean a preponderance of Ontario people on the council, and on a vote being taken it was decided to make the representation for each national organization one.

Dr. John A. Amyot, deputy minister of health, explained the relationship which might exist between the voluntary organization and the Department of Health. If the council desired to put on a nation-wide child welfare week, he felt sure the department would help in every way possible.

The first resolution brought in by the resolutions committee recommended appointment of a minister of parenthood in the Dominion. The resolution pointed out that the post would be by no means a sinecure and that it was a necessity. It referred to discussions which had taken place at the conference, showing the necessity of the organization's efforts in taking care of the mother as well as the child.

The final resolution, which was adopted amid applause, asked that legislation be enacted prohibiting the placing out of children either in free or boarding homes except by adoption, or except by or under the sanction of some responsible official of the specific organization appointed by the province to look after this work.

The will of the people would have to be met. The Premier had nothing to say on the possibility of an early election.

Canadian Red Cross Appeal for Aid for War-Stricken Europe

An urgent appeal for aid to combat the widespread disease and distress in the war-stricken areas in Europe has been made by the League of Red Cross Societies to the nations which have suffered least from the war. In response a War Relief Fund has been undertaken in Great Britain with an Empire-wide appeal for contributions. The fund is under the immediate patronage of His Majesty the King and has the support of all parts of the Empire.

His Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, having received communications from London upon this matter, consulted the Prime Minister, and with his approval referred the question to the Canadian Red Cross Society, and it was arranged for an appeal to be made in Canada during Armistice week in November. The fund will be known as "The British Empire War Relief Fund."

The Canadian Red Cross Society accepted the task of making this appeal known throughout Canada only in view of the relatively circumstances and the humane desire to help to alleviate the terrible suffering of a large number of people. The reactions are numerous and compelling. Large populations are suffering from distress and disease. Millions of innocent children are among them. Even in times of peace great numbers of their people lived close to the bread line. The war drained them of all their surplus resources. Through the years of strife they were denied all but the bare necessities, and their condition now is pitiful indeed. History has repeated itself. The diseases which took their fearful toll of human life after the Thirty-years War, the Seven-years War (1757-65), and the Napoleonic Wars again widespread, and now here are millions of people in Galicia, Poland, Jugoslavia and Roumania who, in addition to being poverty stricken, are in the direst misery and despair on account of disease. In some twelve countries, most of which were either our Allies or friendly to the Allied cause, modern civilization is faced with the inevitable consequences of a great war through partial famine and pestilence.

Men, women and children are dying by thousands, and over vast and civilized areas there are neither medical appliances nor medical skill sufficient to cope with the horrors by which they are faced. Governments have in certain cases done all in their power to bring relief, but there remains a vast field for charitable enterprise which can be dealt with only by voluntary effort.

Doctor Livingstone Earhart, chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, who has just returned from Europe, states that there are 11,000,000 fatherless children in Europe who face the next few years without hope of adequate care unless outside assistance is given.

No stronger call could be made to humanity than that of suffering children and on their behalf particularly the Canadian Red Cross will appeal throughout Canada during Armistice week. Each Provincial Division of the Red Cross will have charge of the arrangements in its own Province, and all Red Cross workers should put themselves into touch immediately with their local branch or with the Headquarters of the Provincial Division if no local branch is organized.

A Canadian Free Port

Plan to Make Vancouver the First Free Port on the Continent.

A plan to make Vancouver the first "free port" on the North American Continent, is receiving the attention of business men in Western Canada. This will be accomplished by the establishment of a "foreign-trade area" in which goods for transshipment would be handled without payment of duty. Facilities for grading, reconditioning, sorting, repacking, mixing or manufacturing foreign merchandise for re-shipment will be provided. The manufacturing establishments would save customs duties and the delays incidental to the use of dutiable imported raw materials, and the restrictions incidental to the use of bonded warehouses and bonded manufacturing plant would be eliminated. Duty would be paid only on goods designated for the Canadian market and shipped out of the foreign trade area.

Many of the larger ports in Europe have their "free areas," whose facilities contributed largely to their growth. The advantage of such areas are so great that it is surprising that they have not been adopted at any other ports on this side of the Atlantic before now.

Steel Industry in B.C.

Favorable Industrial Facilities on the Pacific Coast.

As a result of the report of the investigation committee sent to Chicago by the British Columbia Government to investigate the success of electrical blast furnaces, the establishment of the iron and steel industry in the province can be expected shortly. An electric scrap mill will be established to handle the large quantity of scrap iron and steel now sent every month to the Seattle mills. The committee will also urge the encouragement of the rubber and paper bag industries. It was brought out that 82 per cent of the world's rubber comes from the British Empire and that the raw material can be landed cheaper at the Pacific ports of the province than at Chicago or Akron. They found the great paper bag manufacturers of Chicago using Canadian paper entirely.

A Large Pasture

To Domesticate Wild Animals of the Far North.

The plan to increase Canada's food supply by the domestication of reindeer and muskox in the far north, which was first broached to Canadian authorities by Hjalmar Stefansson the evening before last, promises soon to be given a trial. Hon. Arthur Meighen, who was minister of interior at the time, brought about the appointment of a commission to inquire into the feasibility of the explorer's plans. Dr. J. Rutherford, of the railway board, was chairman of the commission, and Mr. Stefansson and J. B. Harkin, of the Dominion's Park branch, were its other members. That the plan has now reached the stage where its commercial feasibility is about to be given a test is indicated by the incorporation of the Hudson's Bay Reindeer Company with headquarters at Winnipeg, and a capitalization of $200,000. The company proposes to acquire domestic or wild reindeer, muskox, herbivorous animals of all kinds, and to transplant them to grazing areas in the north, for which a lease already has been secured. It is apparently the purpose of the company to make business of the plan of Explorer Stefansson and the powers granted the company are covering all kinds of animals in this attempt.

British Subjects Not For Sale.

The Prince of Wales reached Port of Spain, Trinidad, recently. The city was elaborately decorated for the occasion, with sugarcane stalks, coconuts and coconuts, to represent the industries in which the prosperity of the island depends. In the course of a speech at a dinner given in his honor at Government House, the Prince alluded to a suggestion that the British Empire might be willing to part with one or more of the West Indian islands to a foreign Power, and declared—as he had previously done in Barbados—"British subjects are not for sale."

Photographs By Phone

Message From Paris to London Stated Results Were "All Right."

A black-bearded Frenchman, wearing a pince-nez sat in a little room in the office of the London Daily Mail and telephoned photographs to Paris. Behind this plain statement of fact lies a new romance in science. What M. Edouard Belin, the black-bearded Frenchman, recently did between Antwerp and Paris he improved upon, at the invitation of the Daily Mail.

It was almost impossible to believe that an exposed photograph film, both positive and negative, pasted on a copper cylinder and set revolving by clockwork could be instantaneously reproduced in the form of a picture in Paris.

But it happened. The cylinder, coupled up to the ordinary London Paris telephone wire, went round and round for eight minutes at a time, after the fashion of the old photograph record, and, having been stopped, two minutes later came a telephone message from Paris saying the result was "all right."

The picture was a scene in Dublin, with a tramway car standing in the street, while driver, conductor and passengers stood in the road and prayed for the hunger-stricken Lord Mayor of Cork. This appeared in the Paris edition of the Daily Mail the following morning.

As the cylinder revolves a little electrical needle passes over every bit of the picture, which is in reality vibrations, are thus set up. These vibrations are carried over the telephone wire and cause a tiny illuminated mirror at the receiving station to oscillate.

These oscillations are passed through various magnifying and diminishing lenses to a photographic film, with the result that the degrees of light and shade, the detail, and so forth, which they represent are photographically captured and built up into a complete picture.

Helium Production From Canadian Gas

War-time Experiments Showed Canada Can Supply Non-Inflammable Gas For Balloons.

Prof. J. C. McLennan, University of Toronto, recently addressed the Chemical Society of Great Britain on Helium, its Production and Uses. In the autumn of 1915 the Board of Invention and Research requested Prof. McLennan to undertake a survey of the helium resources of Canada and of the Empire and to investigate their production.

In Ontario, Prof. McLennan found the percentage of helium in natural gas to increase from 0.15 to 0.33 of one per cent, as he went further west. He estimated the whole available supply at 2,000,000 cubic feet per year. In the New Island gas fields in Southern Alberta the percentage is 0.36 and the possible annual supply over 1,000,000 cubic feet.

Following the erection of a small experimental plant at Hamilton, Ont., in 1917, new works were established at Calgary, Alta., in 1918, in the buildings of the Western Canada Natural Gas Co. A run of three days produced, in the second stage, 700 cubic feet of helium of 90 per cent purity. The purity was finally raised to 97 per cent, 99 per cent, being attainable. Prof. McLennan states that a plant could be established at Calgary which would yield 10,500,000 cubic feet of helium of a purity of 97 per cent per year at a cost of $750,000.

During the war, the non-inflammable nature of helium would have made it invaluable for charging dirigibles, but in times of peace, the small available supply will prevent its use for such purposes. When helium is liquefied, it brings us down to 271 or 272 degrees below zero, or within one or two degrees of absolute zero.

At the low temperatures obtainable by liquid oxygen, nitro-glycerine and hydrogen, the heat conductivity, magnetic and other properties of substances are either stimulated to an extraordinary degree or are practically destroyed. With liquid helium available, the first scientific results will undoubtedly be obtained.—Bulletin No. 3, Mines Branch.

Development of the Rich Oil Fields in Mackenzie River Country

A program of big oil development in the north country is likely to be mapped out as a result of information sent from the Edmonton office of the Imperial Oil Company to the head office of the company in Toronto, confirming the news that a real strike had been made at Fort Norman.

T. A. Link, geologist in charge of the experimental work in the far north this summer, reached Edmonton recently, bringing with him the first inside official news of the big strike made by the drillers at Fort Norman in the latter part of August. The explorer Stefansson was camped on the far end of the same oil vein when he was on Victoria Island. The season's experiment has abundantly proved the body of oil-bearing rock in the Mackenzie territory, in conjunction with which, Mexico and Peru are in the miniature class. Samples of the Fort Norman oil were brought out by Mr. Link's party and will be sent to the company's laboratories at Tulsa, Ont., for testing. The oil is said to be of a high grade with a high content of gasoline. The strike was made at a depth of about 500 feet in the same hole from which the seepage oil reported earlier in the summer. Has taken at some sixty to seventy feet. The well is forty miles north of Fort Norman and 200 yards from the river bank. When the oil was struck it came up with a force that carried straight in the air in fifteen feet or more above the top of the derrick from a six-inch casing. The well was capped and two men have been left in charge during the winter, the rest of the drilling crew coming out with Mr. Link.

Drilling will be continued at Great Slave Lake next year in the hope of finding still another supply.

Calculating Dairy Rations

Allow Animal All Silage She Will Eat Twice Daily.

As a matter of fact there is no short cut method of determining rations for dairy cows. If one refers to a standard book on the subject, such as Henry's "Feeds and Feeding," he will find that the various feeding values are identified and likewise the amount of digestible dry matter as well as the digestible protein and carbohydrate feeds are tabulated. Feeding standards have been established identifying the dry matter as well as the amount of materials necessary for cows of a certain weight giving a stipulated amount of milk per day. If the feeder will familiarize himself with these standards and then refer to the tables as quoted, it will be fairly easy for him to determine a relatively well-balanced ration.

Three things are important. Remember that a cow should be fed all of the roughage that she will clean up with relish. Feed the roughage that yields 100 lbs. of digestible carbohydrates at the least cost per cow; and likewise the protein carrier that should yield a pound of protein at the last possible cost. Then use common sense in combining a mixture that will be palatable and attractive to the cow. If the feed silage this can be treated practically the same as a roughage, and the only safe rule to follow is to allow the animal all the silage that she will clean up twice daily. So far as grain feeding is concerned, the feeding of one pound of a well-balanced ration for each three pounds of milk produced per day is fairly satisfactory.

Alberta Winter Fair

Boys' and Girls' Competitions Will Be Important.

The prize list for the Alberta Winter Fair, to be held in Calgary, Dec. 22nd to 26th, is now in the hands of the printer. Several very marked changes have been made in the prize list for this year, among them being the replacing of the ordinary classes for pure-bred cattle by classes for young stock.

The usual, the girls' and boys' competitions at the Winter Fair will be of the greatest importance. There will be $3,100 in prizes for the Baby Beef Competition, and the Lamb Competition, and the prize list will include classes for grades separate from the pure-bred classes in addition to the grand prizes.

The baby beef entries must have been born in 1919 and the lambs must have been born in the present calendar year. The baby beef entries must have been fed and cared for by the exhibitor commencing the first of October until the date of the show, and the age of the exhibitor must be ten years or over and under seventeen years.

The feeding period for the lambs is the same as for the baby beef, but the exhibitor must be eight years or over and under seventeen years.

Certified Seed Grain

Saskatchewan Headed Dominion Last Winter in Registration.

Saskatchewan registered more grain with the Canadian Seed Growers' Association last winter than any other province in Canada. The grain so registered included 18,346 bushels of Marquis wheat, 10,171 bushels of Banner oats and 1,112 bushels of O.A.C. No. 21 barley.

The hand-selected seed plots inspected by representatives of the Weeds and Seeds Branch of the Department of Agriculture during the season were as follows: Wheat, 59 plots, amounting to 41.4 acres; oats, 17 plots, 11.27 acres; barley, 5 plots, 1.46 acres; potatoes, 15 plots, 2.83 acres. And the multiplying fields inspected: Wheat, 119 plots, 3,354.83 acres; oats, 38 plots, 50.65 acres; barley, 8 plots, 23.83 acres; rye, 3 plots, 57 acres; peas, 2 plots, 2.75 acres; potatoes, 15 plots, 4.67 acres.

"There has been a rapid increase in the production and sale of registered seed grain in the province," says M. P. Tullis, weeds and seeds commissioner. "This is accompanied by a widespread interest among farmers in general, and the establishment is recommended of seed stations, where certain districts could, in a few years, produce large quantities of high-quality registered seed grain of suitable standard varieties."

Fashions in Harvests

When Demand Ceases Crop is No Longer Grown.

Fashions in harvests are as liable to change as are other fashions. Perhaps some new invention does away with the need of a crop, and the demand ceasing the crop is no longer grown. This was the case with teasles, which were once largely grown in parts of England. They were used for the purpose of dressing wooler goods. By 1909 metal carding machinery had to a great extent taken the place of these, and for the last few years they have not been cultivated. The saffron crocus, which, like the road of the Ancient Britons, was used by the Greeks and the Romans for the purpose of making a dye, was a fashionable crop in England over a hundred years ago. It was used for medicinal purposes as well as for cookery, and the price realized varied between $5.00 and $7.00 a pound. The name Saffron Walden is the only memorial of this crop. Sugar beet is a crop which is more likely to become more popular in the future. It was hardly known in the Old Country until 1910 when about 700 acres were grown; it did not go out of fashion until it was made necessary to grow other things.
